Holyweed Dispensary

Sathorn, Bangkok — Marketing & Growth Plan

prepared for internal review : Naing

Merged 22 Sep 2026: Suji's operational plan combined with the legitimacy-first reframe agreed in the Holy Group master plan.

Positioning

Holyweed is the wellness and social anchor of the Holy ecosystem, not just a retail counter. The open, come-as-you-are dispensary market of 2022–2024 is gone; the winning position now is the one that makes the compliance process feel easy and the visit feel worth it — "licensed, inspected, passed, lab-tested, trained staff on site, still open" — not the one trying to out-price competitors on flower.

- Brand personality: guided, unhurried, part of something bigger than a transaction
- Tone: warm and knowledgeable — never clinical, never pushy, never implying anything outside the legal medical framework. Bold wording is fine (the house voice), but it never loosens what's legally sayable — every draft still clears the `holyweed-content-check` skill before it ships.
- Tagline direction: "The only dispensary in Sathorn where your visit comes with a rooftop, a kitchen, and a bed upstairs"

Target segments

- Tourists & digital nomads (25–45) — curious, value convenience, clear guidance, an experience worth telling friends about
- Local repeat customers — existing or easily obtained prescription, value consistency and being recognized as a regular
- Wellness-curious expats — treat the rooftop/lounge as a regular social spot, not just a purchase

Buying triggers: reviews/word-of-mouth, the on-site lounge experience, hostel/bistro referral. Hesitation: uncertainty about the prescription process, perceived high pricing without context, confusing in-store product information. What brings them back: a staff member who remembers them, a loyalty perk, a reason to return.

What's working, what's leaking

Working	Leaking
Staff & service quality — named in reviews, hardest thing to copy	Discount-dependent pricing ("buy 3g get 2g free") trains regulars to wait for a deal
Rooftop hangout (lounge, PS5, seating) extends time on-site	No customer database/CRM — no way to spot a repeat customer or measure retention
~4.9-star rating across hundreds of reviews	No cross-referral system between the three businesses
Location — walkable, near MRT Lumpini	In-store menu/pricing clarity issues cost upsells

Stop	Start	Continue
Leading with recurring blanket discounts	A loyalty system rewarding the 5th/10th purchase	Hiring/training staff who build genuine rapport
Treating the three businesses as separate	A one-line staff handoff at checkout	Investing in the rooftop as a reason to stay
Any marketing implying recreational, walk-in-without-prescription access	A fast, clearly signed menu/info board	Actively asking satisfied customers for a review

Compliant channels

Paid cannabis advertising isn't available, so growth runs through:

- On-site experience first — the rooftop, lounge, and clear signage are already doing marketing work
- Reviews — ask naturally at checkout, never incentivized with product; reply to every review
- Cross-promotion — a table tent or verbal mention introducing the rooftop/bistro to every dispensary customer
- Educational content & local SEO — non-promotional content (what a PT 33 consultation involves, what to expect on a first visit, how the licensing changes affect visitors); a well-maintained Google Business Profile
- Opt-in LINE OA — confirmed live and age-verified; new arrivals, hours changes, loyalty milestones, kept private rather than public

Staff scripts

Moment	Line
First-time customer, after checkout	"If you want somewhere to relax after this, the rooftop's just upstairs — kitchen's open too."
Returning customer	"Good to see you again — you're close to your next loyalty reward, by the way."
Hostel guest checking in	"The counter downstairs does a quick consultation if you're curious — no pressure, just good to know it's there."
Bistro table, end of meal	"If you haven't checked out the rooftop and lounge yet, it's a nice way to close out the evening."

Retention & loyalty

Unified QR/LINE loyalty, shared across all three businesses. Milestone rewards (a small perk at visit 5, a bigger one at visit 10) instead of standing discounts. Win-back messages for lapsed regulars offer something useful, not a generic discount blast. Birthday recognition — a note or a small perk.

KPIs to track monthly

Metric	Why it matters	How to calculate
Repeat-customer rate	Retention effectiveness	Returning customers ÷ total customers, monthly
Average basket value	Upsell/menu-clarity effectiveness	Product revenue ÷ transactions
Cross-referral rate	How well the three businesses feed each other	Loyalty visits touching 2+ businesses ÷ total loyalty visits
Review velocity & rating	Local search ranking, new-customer trust	New reviews/month; rolling average rating

90-day rollout

Days 1–30: Compliance audit — confirm on-site practitioner coverage, storage compliance, trained staff, and PT 33 record-keeping against the April 2026 rules; replace the standing "buy 3 get 2" model with milestone loyalty; agree cross-referral scripts with hostel/bistro staff.

Days 31–60: Launch the shared QR/LINE loyalty account; begin a consistent, non-incentivized review ask and reply to every review.

Days 61–90: Publish compliant educational content; pair a milestone reward with a bistro/hostel perk; first KPI review.

Budget guidance

Budget	Where it goes

0 THB	Staff scripts, manual review requests, GBP upkeep, informal cross-promotion
5,000 THB/mo	QR/LINE loyalty tool, in-store signage, milestone-reward stock
20,000 THB/mo	+ content writer/photographer for compliant educational content, proper loyalty/CRM platform
35,000+ THB/mo	+ professional photography, a dedicated compliance/legal check-in, joint dispensary-bistro-rooftop events budget

Figures are hypotheses from Suji's research, not internal Holyweed data. Before executing anything here, confirm current licensing status and review against current Thai cannabis regulation with qualified legal counsel.
